WINEMAKER NOTES

Once again this vintage is a combination of two fantastic growing regions: the Horse Heaven Hills at Alder Ridge and Newhouse Vineyard on Snipes Mountain. Barrel aging almost two years created a caramel, toffee, and chocolate combination that makes this a soft, creamy, and silky wine. Don't worry about fruit, it's there! The black raspberry reminds me of picking black caps on our family farm in Ontario, and the dark cherry and plum mixes with the licorice note.

SYRAH

COLUMBIA VALLEY

Wine Lore: We call it Syrah, but in Australia, they call it Shiraz. The general belief is that this fine Rhone varietal made its way to France from the town of Shiraz in ancient Persia (modern day Iran). And the Persians were known for their high quality red wine, which they called "Shirazi". Whether you call it Syrah, or call it Shiraz, it is a rich deep red to be enjoyed – from the Columbia Valley in Washington State, of course!
